Workshop Descriptions

Political Organizing: The Why, the Way and the How!

In this workshop we will dig into some of the ways politics affects our lives. We will talk about how unions internally organize members during elections. Additionally, we will cover the various ways to participate on campaigns because there are roles for everyone! And we will end with some practice using a powerful conversational tool that will prepare you to talk to your colleagues and the public about getting out to vote.

Leadership for Inclusive and Thriving Organizations

There's no one way to lead. From one leader to another, styles and approaches can differ — and leaders often switch approaches depending on circumstances. In this session, we'll look at common leadership approaches for learning organizations, reflect on the kind of leader you are, and help you develop tools for leading in inclusive and inspiring ways.

211 Rapid Training

Explore the challenges working people face every day and learn how you can be a resource to support them when personal and social crises emerge in our lives. This workshop teaches participants how to draw on more than 14,000 community-based programs and services in BC that can help your fellow workers out — sometimes in ways that a Collective Agreement isn't able to (yet).

Be More Than A Bystander

Presented by the BC Centre for Women in the Trades, this workshop equips participants with practical tools and strategies to prevent and intervene in gender-based and other forms of bullying, harassment, and violence in workplaces in the skilled trades industry. Be More Than A Bystander is training and educational program to support organizational and cultural shifts towards more inclusive, safer, and respectful workplaces.
