Health science professionals reach tentative agreement

After more than nine months of negotiations, a tentative agreement was reached yesterday between the Health Science Professionals Bargaining Association and the Health Employers Association of BC.

The multi-union bargaining agent – led by the Health Sciences Association – represents about 17,000 health care workers in rehabilitation, clinical and diagnostic services across B.C.

Other unions in the association are HEU, BCGEU, CUPE and the Professional Employees Association.

More information will be available in January after HEU's Provincial Executive reviews the tentative deal.

Check HEU's website in the new year for updates.
